Wedding Bells FIRKUS — BELTON

A very pretty wedding was held at the United Church, Irma, Monday, November 21, at 1 p.m. when Freda Mae Belton, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Belton, Jarrow and Clifford Ambrose Firkus, son of Mr. A. P. Firkus and the late Mrs. Alice Firkus of Jarrow were united in marriage.

Rev. H. W. Inglis performed the ceremony. The bride wore white, tulle, lace dress, with lace yoke and a floor length veil held in place with a beaded tiara. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls, gift of the groom and she carried a bouquet of roses.

Miss Joyce Firkus, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore pink tulle and net over skirt, and carried a bouquet of carnations and roses.

Mr. Albert Firkus acted as his brother's best man and Mrs. M. L. Burns, cousin of the groom, played the wedding music. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. For going away the bride wore a brown gabardine suit, her accessories were brown and she wore a corsage of roses. After a short honeymoon trip the couple will make their home on a farm north-east of Irma.

Northern Nuggets

We are very glad to report that Robin Johnson is home from the hospital now.

We see that Mr. and Mrs. Alf Larson are driving a nice 1949 Chevy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Jones visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield on Sunday.

The ladies of the W.I. wish to thank all who helped in any way to make their bazaar a success. A very special thanks goes to the girls who waited on tables.

Successful Bazaar Held

On Saturday, Nov. 19 the ladies of the Buffalo Coulee W.I. held a tea and sale of fancy work in Hedley's Hall. This was the first time that the women had sponsored a bazaar in Irma and they were more than pleased with the large crowd that patronized them.

Nearly all the fancy work was sold and lunches were served until there was no more food left. The candy and mystery tables were also very well patronized. All in all, from the view point of the women, this was a very successful bazaar and we have hopes of repeating the performance next fall.

Glen-Coa Gleanings

Among the news items that should have been mentioned last week were these: The Rev. and Mrs. Irvin Reitan, and small daughter of Birch Hills, Sask., visited relatives and friends for a week recently. Also Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Reitan of Calgary spent Remembrance Day week-end with relatives here.

Irma United Church Anniversary Service Well Attended

The Irma United church celebrated its 39th Anniversary on Nov. 20 and 21. Both the church service and the chicken supper were well attended, the latter, we believe, was a record gathering. The food was plentiful and of first class manufacture and was enjoyed in an atmosphere of good fellowship.

The Rev. F. Forster of Viking was the guest speaker on each occasion and his messages were well received.

Other highlights on the Monday evening program were an anthem by the choir, a duet by Jennie and Lorna Archibald, and a solo and encore by Bob Forster, son of the Rev. F. Forster.

The Rev. H. W. Inglis was chairman.

Most of us look forward to the Anniversary gathering every fall but you know we could have a gathering like that every Sunday evening. We would certainly have to enlarge the church out with such a congregation it could be cheerfully and easily done. Let us get together on it.

Jarrow News

Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Meaking and Terry motored to Edmonton last week. A Ronjom accompanied them.

Vivian Overby spent last week-end at her home here. Lawrence Overby was also a visitor from Edmonton at Overby's.

The Batts' pupils and teachers sponsored a whist drive and dance at the school on Saturday last in aid of the Christmas Concert Fund. During the evening's activities the draw was made on the box of groceries raffied by the school to raise funds, the holder of the lucky ticket being Shirley Anne Meaking. The pupils and teachers wish to thank one and all who helped make their Christmas Fund drive a success.

Olga Bruhaug visited at Overby's over the week-end.

Congratulations are extended this week to the newlyweds of our community, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Firkus whose wedding took place on Monday. A wedding dance is to be held in their honor at Jarrow hall on Friday, Nov. 25. Everyone welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Sutter and daughter Dianne of Hughenden were recent visitors at the V. Lindberg home.

Thieves forced their way through the back door of Joe Ingvaldsen's garage last Tuesday night and stole tools, oil and other equipment. This was a loss to Joe of more than three hundred dollars. It is hoped that the stolen goods will be recovered.

The doctor, matron and hospital staff deserve the highest praise for the way this sensational birth was performed.

At present there is no investigation as to the exact state of the union, but when circumstances permit, expert consultation will be obtained.

Science turned their backs on the target

Science is playing an increasingly important role in Canada's new Army. In heavy anti-aircraft, for example, complex radar equipment predicts to within a few feet exactly where the target is and will be. The gunners, their backs to the target, fire with amazing accuracy by instrument.

Training men in the use of modern scientific equipment is a major requirement in Canada's new Army. Thousands of young men are attending some of the finest schools in the country, specializing in electronics, radar, radio and telephone. In addition, there are openings for clerks, drivers, mechanics and many other trades.

New higher pay, good food and quarters, trades training and the opportunity for advancement make the Canadian Army Active Force one of the most attractive careers open to young men today. You are eligible if you are 17 or over and can meet Army requirements. Visit your nearest recruiting office soon for full details. Bring certificates of birth and education with you.

I just can't save money!

That's what I used to say, and it was true. Sometimes I'd dream of the day when I'd have time and leisure to do all the things I wanted to do, but I had to admit I wasn't doing anything about it except dream. I never seemed to be able to put anything aside.

Now, I know those dreams will come true. They're guaranteed.

Through a simple saving plan which, strangely enough, I've found involves no hardship, I am now saving money for the first time in my life.

Mysteries Of Devaluation

By Lewis Milligan

Foreign Exchange is supposed to be one of the deepest mysteries of High Finance. We have been told that only bankers, finance ministers and those engaged daily in world commerce can understand and grasp all its ramifications. What does the average man, or particularly the average housewife, know about high finance? And yet there is more mist than mystery about it. The housewife knows a great deal about low finance in making ends meet with her limited income. She knows that when the prices of commodities go up, the value of her dollar goes down—her dollars automatically devaluated.

That is how I explained it to a housewife who asked me, "What is all this talk in the newspapers about devaluation?" My answer may have been an over-simplification of the recent financial crisis in Britain. But the problem faced by Sir Stafford Cripps in drawing up and balancing his budget was essentially a domestic one. When it was announced that Sir Stafford had devaluated the pound sterling, most people naturally assumed that he had by that act reduced its value. But the real value of the pound had already been reduced at home as well as abroad, and all that Sir Stafford did was to acknowledge the fact officially.

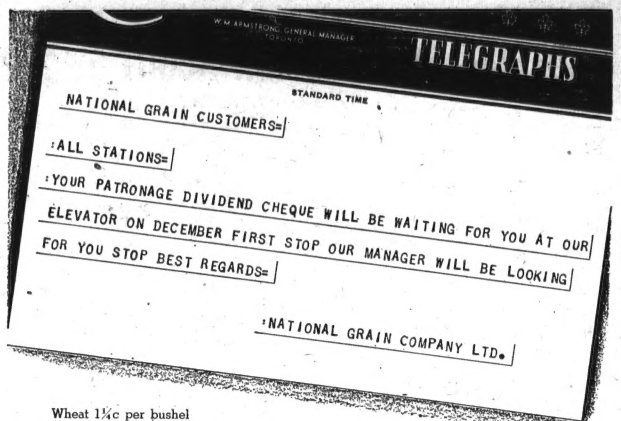

There never was a time when the British worker had so much money in his pocket than he has today, and yet he is never was a time when he could buy so little with a pound. The purchasing power of a pound note, as of a dollar bill depends upon the prices of goods, and that power falls or rises with the fluctuations of the markets. The prices of goods are determined by the cost of production and servicing, plus all kinds of taxes. In Britain the costs of production, servicing and taxation are at an all-time high. In addition the Government has, by its export policy, created a shortage of home-made commodities which tends still further to raise prices and lower the purchasing-power of the money in the people's pockets.

Thus the process of devaluation has been accelerated by every attempt made to arrest or reverse it. Economic planning, which calls for controls of industry and the rationing of raw materials and household commodities, created discontent among the workers, which has resulted in unofficial strikes and demands for higher and higher wages. Nationalization in itself was a costly undertaking, and the extension of free public services bonuses and subsidies added to government expenditures and taxation.

However good the intentions of the Labor Government may have been, the launching of such a vast and costly program of experimentation was bound to be financially disastrous at a time when the nation's resources had been exhausted by the greatest of all wars. An impoverished nation, any more than a poor man, cannot afford to gamble with its meagre resources on a theoretical proposition. That is what the Labor Government has done, and it appears to have imparted the gambling spirit to the workers who have so far forgotten their socialistic ideals of equality that every man is trying to get rich quick and lord it over his neighbor.

Whatever government had come into power after the war, it would have been faced with a stupendous task in rebuilding the nation's peacetime industries and recovering its lost world trade and commerce. Britain was already on the verge of bankruptcy at the close of the war, and if it had not been for the material and financial support given by the United States and Canada the British people might have starved. Now, after four years of intensive economic and industrial planning, Britain, on Sir Stafford Cripps' own admission, is nearer bankruptcy than ever.

The only hope, it seems to me, is that the British people will get away from one-class government and recruit all their political and economic forces and leadership in a national government. True democracy is government by and for ALL the people, and a one-class government is the surest of all devaluators.

Measures For Safety

THE EVER-INCREASING USE OF MACHINES in industry have raised efficiency and production rates to high levels. In spite of this speed and efficiency, however, and the excellent working conditions provided in most modern industrial plants, the chances of accidents are often great and constant precautions are taken to protect employees from receiving injuries while they are at work. Safety engineering has become a highly specialized profession and most industrial plants retain at least one man whose duty it is to keep the number of accidents among workers as low as possible. In large industries there is often a central safety committee, composed of safety officers and officials of the plant, who work together to make working conditions as safe as possible.

Many Safety Measures Used

There are a number of approaches to the problem of reducing industrial accidents. Safety devices for machines and the removal of hazards in the way of unsafe stairways, elevators and other such structural defects are, of course, important. There is also the need to educate workers to the potential hazards of their machines or tools, and to any other possible causes of accidents about the plant. Careful investigation of the cause of any accidents which do occur, and the rectification of the cause, if possible, is also a safety measure used in most industries, as is the penalizing of any employees who cause accidents through carelessness. Farming, while it is an industry, cannot be compared with industrial plants in which rules can be enforced and constant supervision exercised. However, machines are used very extensively on farms today, especially in the West, and statistics show that farmers are frequently injured in the course of their work.

Should Try To Reduce Loss

From June, 1946, to June, 1947, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported that 37,200 farmers were injured at work, and more than 1,000,000 man days were lost to Canadian farmers due to fires and accidents. Because of the extensive use of machinery on the prairies, about sixty per cent. of the farm accidents occur in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, although these provinces claim only about one-third of Canada's farming population. The same methods of preventing accidents in industrial plants cannot be used on the farm, but great efforts are made to acquaint the farmer with the correct ways of using complex machinery and with the dangers involved in that part of his work. Manufacturers of farm machinery also make special efforts to remove all possible weaknesses or defects which might lead to accidents due to faulty construction of the machines. The importance of anticipating and preventing accidents is stressed everywhere today, and agriculture is endeavoring to keep pace with other industries in cutting down the number of man days lost each year due to these causes.

Hayfork Installation Plan

Drawing of hayfork installation where there is no track.

HERE is a drawing showing how a hayfork can be installed in a barn without a track. By this method the bundle will be drawn nearly straight up for a considerable distance before it is pulled laterally into the mow. The centre pulley, or fork pulley, is attached to the fork as is only one end of the rope. This end of the rope then passes through the pulley over the mow, then down through the fork pulley, up through the pulley over the other mow and down to the draw pulley at the barn floor. If the other mow is to be filled the end of the rope now on the fork is run down to the horses while the end now running to the team is attached to the fork. In timber frame barns with collar beams it is sometimes necessary to nail planks vertically to the beams to prevent bundles from catching under the beams on their way up.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Blacksnakes, we read, are good for chasing roaches out of a home. Are they as effective with relatives?

When her baby cried so loudly, Mrs. Jones felt obliged to drop everything and investigate. "Tommy," she called down stairs, "what is the matter with your little brother?" "He's crying because I'm eating my cake and won't give him any," Tommy replied. "Is his cake finished yet?" "Sure—and he cried while I was eating that too."

Stranger (to merchant)—Do you find that married men or single men make the best clerks. Merchant (whispering)—Married men. They are not in such an awful rush to get out of the place and get home.

A little girl who attended her first church wedding turned to her mother as the bride left and asked: "Mummy, why did she change her mind?" "She didn't change her mind," the mother answered. "Why do you think so?"

"Well," said the little girl, "she went up the aisle with one man and came back with another."

A tournament and a wedding ring have one thing in common, observes a wisecracker. They both stop circulation.

looking up from his book, "what are diplomatic relations?" "My boy," said his father, sadly, "there aren't any."

"Daddy," said little Johnny, "I'm the best looking boy in Sunday school."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Childhood Encore

By Roger S. Vreeland

THE house still stands at 215 Inwood Lane, Claremont. The Inwood Lane is important. Remember that. The number doesn't make any difference, because then there wasn't another house within five hundred yards.

Honeysuckle at the end of the piazza entwined a lattice screen and you could really suck the honey. Uncle Clem—who wasn't really my uncle—had shown me how. Cannaes grew funnel-shape way up past the piazza railing and developed fuzzy red globular things with big sticky seeds inside that Uncle Clem and I used to pop out at each other. The railing itself was a perfect car track except that you had to pick up the cars to get past the posts. Mother's her his family was gone and asked if she had a room to spare. He said he had a little money, enough to pay for his room and board, and with a strange glint in his eyes that I've never forgotten, he told her he thought he could be helpful around the house.

Uncle Clem spent nearly all his time with me. Sometimes he would forget what we were playing, and sit with a kind of dreamy, faraway look, round poney garden on the side lawn by the swing that my father had made (I never remembered him) grew luscious creamy pink and white flowers. The sand box in the back, where Uncle Clem would get down on his hands and knees—grunting and laughing at the same time—and help me plant the castles and highways; the cherry tree that he used to boost me up with designs for a cherry pie. Inside was the brick fireplace before which the three of us would sit in the winter, Uncle Clem taking care of the fire and telling us stories while Mother sewed, and I would watch the picture of Nerva's Horses over the mantel until I saw their eyes roll and breath steam out of their nostrils. In the back bedroom was the mysterious alcove that I never knew where he came from, until after he was gone. The first I ever saw of him was when he appeared at the door late one afternoon. I took him into the living-room and "entertained" him until Mother came in from the chicken coop. While he waited he played a funny little tune on the piano and whistled a chirpy sort of accompaniment. Mother was cool to him at first. She was always suspicious of strangers. But I saw the kind of fellow he was when he came in. Then he would snap back at what we were doing. He got to calling my mother Mom and I guess she thought it was amusing, but sometimes I would notice a sort of puzzled look in her eyes. I guess she was glad to have him around, for she didn't have to keep her eyes on me so closely, and there weren't any other children for me to play with. Once I heard him tell her that his working days were over and he enjoyed trying to be a boy again. But there were some things I couldn't understand about him. When we played together he seemed to have an uncanny sense of where to look. He knew about the flat stone over the abandoned well behind the chicken coop before I showed it to him, the loose board on the floor of my closet, the recesses over the eaves in the attic, and the door to the unused cold storage vault in the cellar. He even

Master Farm Families Competition

Five Alberta farm families are basking in the glow of achievement, winners in the Province of Alberta's first annual Master Farm Families competition after summer long judging of more than a hundred entries in the event. Each of the farmers won a cheque for a thousand dollars. Pictured above is the winning farm for Central Alberta. It is the roomy home and up-to-date barns of W. J. Edgar of Innisfail.

Western Briefs

Angler Still Young
MISSION CITY, B.C.—Mike Miller, 92-year-old fisherman, wasn't a bit excited about landing a 50-pound Fraser River sturgeon on a light rod and reel. "It hooked and landed a 125-pounder when I was 87, and expect to beat that by the time I reach 100," he said.

Oil Flowing By 1950
REGINA.—"Crude oil should be flowing through the pipeline as far as Regina by approximately Dec. 1, 1950," Ward O. Longworthy, superintendent of Imperial Oil refinery in Regina, told the Gyro club recently.

Road Rebuilding
SALT SPRING ISLAND, B.C.—Main Salt Spring Island Highway, between Puffin and Ganges, will be rebuilt beginning next spring. Health Minister Pearson gave that assurance to an advisory committee meeting at Ganges and added that work on at least half the distance between the two points would be completed by the end of 1950.

Traveller From Ontario
GILBERT PLAINS, Man.—A wild duck shot near this western Manitoba town recently came a long way. It had been banded at the Jack Miner bird sanctuary at Kingsville, in southwestern Ontario.

Big Game Experiment
MEDICINE HAT, Alta.—A long-term propagation program aimed at increasing the number of elk and moose in Alberta is being drawn up by sportsmen and game officials. George Spargo, secretary-manager of the Alberta Fish and Game association, said.

The Champ
CASTOR, Alta.—Harold Reid's bull, Don, is struggling around these days like the champion he is. Don fought off four other bulls just his size one moonlight night. Though Don doesn't know it, all four were his own reflection in a four-pane basement window, which he shattered one by one.

Local Talent
LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—They couldn't have picked a better name than Native Sons for the Lethbridge entry in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League. Ten of the team's 14 players in the opening game were natives of Lethbridge.

knocked on one of the inside walls where it sounded hollow, and he said: "There was a window there once."

When Uncle Clem died I cried all night. Mother had to go into his personal things. His will was made out to her, leaving her enough to buy the house. I'll never forget her cry of surprise when she came across an old newspaper clipping he had saved. It was about his retirement from business. I have it now.

"Clement B. Hale," it began, "was served a testimonial dinner last night by the insurance company which he has served for 40 years. This is a record for the company, stated John H. Quinn, the president, who presented Mr. Hale with a gold watch. Hale, who now retires on pension, was born March 19, 1852, on Inwood Lane, Claremont."

GANGED UP ON TURTLE
MARTIN'S RIVER, N.S.—Most of the residents of this little community, armed with rifles, shotguns and clubs, ganged up on a five-foot, 800-pound sea turtle in Martin's river. The turtle succumbed to several rifle wounds, a clubbed back and a fractured skull.

B.C. Potato Crop Will Meet Needs

VICTORIA.—Provincial Agriculture department officials predict that British Columbia this winter will need few if any potatoes from other provinces.

British Columbia often fails to produce enough potatoes to satisfy her own markets. In the past imports have been made from Alberta and Saskatchewan, and sometimes from as far east as Manitoba and from the United States.

Alberta this year is reported to be harvesting a crop only 50 per cent. of average.

British Columbia on the other hand is harvesting a crop which is pretty well up to average on the whole, said officials of the field crop branch of the agriculture department.

This year's potato crops have been noted by frostiness from late blight, a disease which made heavy inroads on the crop last year because of the damp summer and fall.

British Columbia is expected to make heavy shipments of certified seed potatoes to the U.S., as in other years. U.S. growers turn to B.C. because it is one of the few remaining areas on this continent in which seed potatoes are virtually free of bacterial ring rot and certain other virus diseases, can be produced.

ALL-OUT EFFORT
SPY HILL, Sask.—A community bee was held recently in an all-out effort to finish the new Spy Hill Memorial rink.

Out of an estimated $10,000 to cover cost of the building, $7,000 has already been raised by personal donations and community projects.

Dominion Of Canada Ruled Incorrect Title

OTTAWA.—The official name of this country is simply Canada and not the Dominion of Canada, the commons was told.

Hon. Douglas Abbott, finance minister, explained the words "dominion of" had been left out since Oct. 1, 1947. They had not been included in the letters patent constituting the office of the governor-general on that date, he said.

RICH, SPICY CINNAMON BUNS

Recipe

Measure into large bowl, 1 c. lukewarm water, 2 tps. granulated sugar, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. yeast. Sprinkle with 2 envelopes Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 min. THEN stir well. Add 1 c. milk and stir in 1/2 c. granulated sugar, 1/4 tsp. salt, 6 tbs. shortening, cool to lukewarm. Add to yeast mixture and stir in 2 well-beaten eggs. Stir in 6 c. once-sifted bread flour, beat until smooth. Work in 3 c. more once-sifted bread flour. Knead until smooth and elastic; place in greased bowl and brush top with melted butter or shortening. Cover and set in warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. While dough is rising, combine 1 1/2 c. brown sugar (lightly pressed down), 3 tps. ground cinnamon, 1 c. washed and dried seedless raisins. Punch down dough and divide into 2 equal portions; form into smooth balls. Roll each piece into an oblong 1/4" thick and 16" long loaf; brush with melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with raisin mixture. Beginning at 1 end, roll up each piece loosely, like a jelly roll. Cut into 1" slices. Place just touching each other, a cut-side up, in greased 7" round layer-cake pans (or other shallow pans). Grease tops. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderate oven, 350°, 20-25 minutes. Serve hot, or reheated.
